The Aluminum storm panel shutters offer the maximum storm protection at the most efficient cost. These storm panels take the place of old bulky plywood; they are easily stored and take up less room. The light-weight, re-usable aluminum panels are easily put up in case of a fast approaching storm. The track system is fastened to the window frames; then the panels are put into the track and overlap one another when they are installed.

The Woven Wood Shades come in many different colors and textures also. These are Roman style shades and can be hobbled also. The woven woods are another one of our great window coverings that we offer.

Plantation Shutters Interior

Plantation Shutters are commonly referred to as "the ultimate window covering". Their versatility makes them desirable for both traditional and contemporary decors. Our Plantation Shutters are custom made for each window. They are composed of a faux wood product, which works well in hot, humid climates and are painted to match the interior trim of your home. The panels are fastened to window casing that allows you to open the whole unit so you can have full view out of your windows. The mid rail is an option that can be used that allows you to open the top louvers with the tilt rod while leaving the bottom louvers closed or vice versa. Plantation Shutters are popular due to high resale value, effective insulation, ability to regulate and block light, and their remarkably good looks. They can be used in any room and they seldom need a fabric valance or drapery to dress them up
